

Madness

By Helen J. Dixon

Sometimes my love is so strong
I feel I shall go insane -
Wild from the longing to be with you.
Disturbed by the space that separates us.
Maddened by the racing of my pulse
Whenever a thought of you passes through my mind
It is a pure insanity
A madness that keeps me strong
The intensity is such that my senses reel
From the need to feel your tender kiss
My blood boils with the ache to experience your embrace
My brain's at a fevered pitch with images of your face
Your hair curling on my fingers,
The frenzied beating of my heart at the very mention of your name
My body's ablaze when sparked by passion
A sweet lunacy that's tempered by the warmth of your love

Copyright © 1998 Helen J. Dixon